THEODORE ROOSEVELT

Theodore Roosevelt is dead. Our former president, the idol of the people, has passed to the world beyond. His death comes as a shock to the thousands who idolized him and is a distinct loss to the world at large.

His personality was scarcely less striking than his career. His frame was sturdy and upright, his temperament ardent and his manner vigorous. His most notable mental characteristic was an extraordinary keenness of apprehension and a keen interest in every subject which had to do with human progress, such as the solution of moral and social problems.

As an executive he was distinguished for his resourcefulness in devising and his boldness in attempting new methods of accomplishing results for which others had struggled in vain, over well beaten paths, and his tireless pursuit of an end upon which he had once fixed his purpose.
The details he left to subordinates.

Twenty-sixth president of the United States, former governor of New York state, assistant secretary of the navy, McKinley's cabinet, peace commissioner of New York city, former member of the New York state legislature, cowboy, student, explorer, lecturer, writer and soldier, he always gave his best into whatever undertaking he entered into.

He was a unique figure in the political life of the nation. Nominated and elected vice-president, he succeeded the rest of the office at the death of President McKinley, and later was elected for a full term. Laying down the work of the office, he named as his successor, William Howard Taft, and then spent four years in study, exploring and lecturing, when he again stepped into the limelight as the candidate for the progressive republican party, organized as a protest against the log-rolling of the old republican organization.

By his action he defeated Taft for re-election and Woodrow Wilson was elected.

Intensely patriotic, his efforts during the recent war have been directed towards bringing to the attention of the United States, the need for preparation for the struggle he knew they must enter into and denied the importance of going himself the same day one of the most made the supreme sacrifice and the other an illustrious name as a soldier.

A descendant of the old Dutch stock that first settled on the Island of Manhattan, he was a typical American and in his demise the United States loses a man whose love of country overshadowed even his own personal ambition and is to be deeply deplored.

THE LEGISLATURE.

The new legislature that convenes soon at Madison has many momentous questions to decide. Chief among them is one which is of vital interest to a great majority of the citizens of the United States—that of the enforcement of the plain for national prohibition and also of great interest to Wisconsin, where so many communities have voted on the saloons already.

Just what the legislature will do with this measure is still problematic.
One might hazard a guess that it will be used as a trading medium for general log rolling by various members who will hold controlling votes. However, it must be faced and one would not expect any backward action in so progressive a state as Wisconsin, on a matter of such vital importance.

The preliminary work of organization of the assembly will be interesting to watch. The selection of a speaker will quickly demonstrate what particular faction of the republican party actually controls the majority of the members and the right between the opponents, and also the Phillips elements will be clear-cut and defined in the opening days.

For Rock county, State Senator Laurence Cunningham of Beloit represents the county in the upper house with dignity and honor, while in the lower branch Hon. Thos. S. Nolan of this city, whose metal has been tried and whose ability is recognized, and Mr. Mathewson of Beloit are the as-semblymen. Mr. Nolan has been spoken of as a possible floor leader and chairman of the judiciary committee and his selection will depend largely upon the faction that controls, so the opening days will be interesting locally.

CHANGE IN OFFICES.

Today formally marked the transfer of the county officials from the old term to the new one. In but two cases have changes been made. That of Under-sheriff Beley to become sheriff defacto, and Lynn Whaley, who succeeds Frank Ryan as coroner.
The remainder of the county officers have all been re-elected and their old offices, among them the dean of the county of the county—Howard Lee—whose long term as county clerk has gained for him a most enviable reputation.

Our new sheriff, Fred Beley, steps into office as the successor to Robert O. Whipple, who has made a most efficient, capable officer. As chairman of the selective draft board, aside from his official duties, he had a most difficult and trying position to fill and that he accomplished it with credit to himself and the county is worthy of special comment. That he is to remain in the sheriff's office as under-sheriff should be a source of gratification to his many friends.

In Sheriff Beley the county has selected a man whose services during the past two years have trained him most thoroughly for the duties of the office. The county is to be congratulated upon his election in the troublesome days of the demobilization. He thoroughly understands the workings of the commitment law and will keep up the high standard in its enforcement that Rock county has made since its enactment.

For many years the office of county coroner was merely a joke, and but few ever qualified for its requirements even if elected as a joke. The retiring official, Frank Ryan, accepted the office by appointment, later being elected to a full term, and has demonstrated the value of such an official to the county. His successor, Lynn Whaley, is one of our successful younger business men and it is safe to say that his inception of the work at hand will increase the efficiency of the office during his term of office.

The remainder of the "old-new" county officials need no eulogy.
"Judge" Jesse Earle has proven his efficiency as clerk of the court. A.
M. Church as county treasurer, and F. P. Smiley as register of deeds, considering the fact that no one was nominated against them, shows how the public consider them. Of Howard Lee, word has been spoken before.

However, to old and new county officials the Gazette bids you welcome and offers its congratulations and best wishes for a successful termination of your terms of public trust to which you have been elected.

Just think of it! One of those cool, calculating individuals makes the assertion that to make the "old safe" for democracy to live in, the automobile industry must be restricted.
He says that the loss of life from auto accidents during the past year was more than the total loss of life by the United States soldiers in France. Paugh!

Perhaps that army of occupation is not living off the fat of the land, but it is safe to say that the boys in khaki are mightily glad not to be in the trenches these cold winter mornings and would much rather be watching for the Lorelei of the fabled Rhine.

Emperor "Bill" expected a place in the sun, so why does he not know enough to procure a first-class safe and sit in it like a log? Of course he may find it difficult to discover an Alexander to enser at, but he could express his opinion of presidents in a skin snarl.

Colonel House is located at a "listening post" over in France and thus far he has been doing all the listening and probably has an ear full by this time, so that he will know how to act when peace talk begins.

The rinking out of monarchies and clinging in of republics marked a new era in the world's history. The only trouble is in these new European republics everyone wants to be president at the same time.

Even when President Wilson declares he has had enough of Europe he will leave his dear friend, Colonel House, to sit on and keep the "old lady" comfortable and drive away the blues.

Russia waits until it is too cold to fight and then starts a revolution all of its own, not knowing the war was over weeks ago and peace terms are being discussed.

The Poles must know what they are about, but it looks mighty scary to stand on Berlin with but thirty thousand men and Germany waiting with all its troops, under arms.

Just think of it! In British India 23,918 persons died of snake bites last year and no one hears the cry for a St. Patrick as yet.

That Mexican question is going to trouble future administrations even if Wilson does succeed in establishing his league of nations.

Why not secure a German cannon for Janesville as a monument to the work of the boys who went over and did their bit across the water?

Has anyone thought to place Nineteen hundred and sixteen peace bonds yet?
If not it is not too late.

The Grät Bend "Tribune" says more evidence of how the war has disapproved is that this country is not in the fact that only 100,000 Americans applied for passage to Europe the first week after the armistice was signed.

More doughboys are sailing for Europe every day—in the first cabins.

Speaking of hair raids, chirps nothing. We don't know anybody who wants to have it twice.

Says a far east writer: "President

His courtesy is a weapon which he

In that way he reminds us of the kaiser. He is so different.

There is still a strong military guard about the White House in Washington and Tom Marshall is said to be in some anxiety to whether the guard is to keep him in or keep him out. Just at the present time Tom has a complete equipment for a first-class something-or-other—all except a status.

WHO'S WHO in the Daily News

The Swiss federal assembly, formed by the union of the national council and the council of states, presided at the annual assembly of the federation for the year 1918. Mr. Ador is well known as the president of the International Red Cross. He is a statesman, an ideal-ist, after the fashion of the Democratic party of Geneva, who has the firm conviction that right and justice alone can prevail.

Jurist by profession, as a young man he became chief of the Democratic party of Geneva, later on,
by a unanimi-ous vote of his canton, he was elected as representative of the national council, of which body he has become president.

In 1900, on the occasion of the Paris exhibition, he was sent to the French capital as general commissioner of Switzerland. He achieved himself of his task with such notable distinction that the French government made him a grand officer of the Legion d'Honneur.

In 1910, after the death of Mr.
Meyrin, the then president of the International committee of the Red Cross at Geneva, it was Mr. Ador who was destined to become the head of that noblest of human organizations. In this capacity he is personally known to a great many prominent Americans who have made his acquaintance at Geneva, or in this country in the spring of 1918. He is confident of the success of the International Red Cross conference at Washington, D. C., with a pleasure tour through the United States.

The outbreak of the war and with its tremendous demands on the Red Cross found Mr. Ador prepared to master the most gigantic tasks.
In fact, it has proved an opportunity for him to use his unique talents as organizer and pilot of huge benevolent institutions.

In August, 1914, as soon as the reports came in of the first battles, he founded the Red Cross agency of the prisoners of war, whose main purpose was to act as intermediary between the prisoners of war and their families and friends. A marvelous and rapid judgment, as well as firmness in his decisions, always characterize his work, to which he invariably adds a kindly smile and courtesy.

To help those who suffer and to cheer up those near despair was the great work of Mr. Ador during the war. Geneva, the home of Jean Jacques Rousseau and the birthplace of Jean Henri Dunant, the founder of the Red Cross society, may understand be proud to claim Mr. Ador son.

LIEUT. DAILEY SAILS FOR ENGLAND SOON

Lieut. Robert Dailey is scheduled to sail for Liverpool, England, with his unit of the Red Cross, January 15, on the liner Lapland. From England he possibly may be sent to France, but has received no definite notice of where his work will take him.
Lieut. Dailey returned this morning to Chicago, where he has been stationed the past several months. He will leave and leave spent in the city.
He will come home again Friday on a 48-hour leave before leaving for New York, next week to sail.

MERCHANTS NOTICE EXPRESS RATE RAISE

Many local merchants are just beginning to take notice of the new increase in express rates which went into effect January 1st, 1919. The raise effected by the American Railway Express company, varies from 1 to 17 cents per hundred pounds, according to the class of shipment.

STATE OFFICIALS ARE INDUCTED WITHOUT POMP OR CEREMONY

GOV. PHILIPP BEGINS THIRD TERM AS CHIEF EXECUTIVE OF STATE; OATH GIVEN
LAST WEEK.

LEGISLATURE READY

Outcome of Republican Caucus on Selection of Speaker Is in Doubt; Young of Watworth Confident.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Madison, Wis. Jan. 6.—Gov. Philipp began his third term as chief executive of the state today. There was no normal inauguration of state officers.
They took their oaths of office during the past week and fled them with the secretary of state. The ceremonies which have marked the commencement of other administrations was omitted at the request of Gov.
Philipp. The only change in the official family is John J. Blaine of Boscobel, who takes the place of attorney general in place of Spencer Haven.
Flowers decorated the desks of the state officers and there were many callers during the day at the different state departments.

Philipp Twenty-third Governor.
Gov. Philipp is the twenty-third governor to hold the office since statehood in 1848. He is the fourth governor to be elected for a third term.
Lieut. Gov. E. P. Dittmar, Baraboo, is serving his third term and he is also the twenty-third man to hold the office of lieutenant-governorship in the state. Secretary of State Merle Hull, Black River Falls, is commencing his second term. State Treasurer Henry Johnson, Oconto, began his fourth term today. John T. Blaine, Eau Claire, begins his first term as twenty-third official to hold the office.

Legislature Convened Wednesday.
The absence of official pomp in the induction of the state officials has given way to preparation for the sixty-sixth session of the legislature, which will convene here Wednesday noon. Gov. Philipp is putting the household touches on his annual message. George B. Hudson, Milwaukee, will act as executive counsel.

No one seems to be able to predict the exact outcome of the Republican caucus scheduled for Tuesday evening.
The Republicans have an overwhelming majority in both houses and will control the appointments.
There is doubt as to who will be elected speaker. Riley S. Young, Walworth, has made a thorough canvass for the position and his friends are confident. The former contingent, which is large, will either back Adams, or Assemblyman Connor, Brule.
Chief Clerk C. E. Shaffer, Madison, and T. G. Cretney, Arena, will be re-chosen as chief clerk and sergeant-at-arms of the house.

Burke for Senate President.
In the senate, Senator Timothy Burke, Green Bay, will be elected president pro tempore. It is doubtful if the chief clerk and sergeant-at-arms of the last session will be re-chosen.
Of the several candidates for these positions, no one seems to have a sensible chance of being elected. It will take the majority of the pledges and it will take the Republican caucus to settle the matter.

Cardinal Mercier to Visit U. S.
Brussels—Cardinal Mercier will visit America soon, the newspapers have announced.

WAGE CAMPAIGN FOR ARMENIAN RELIEF

H. A. Moehlenpaul, Clinton, Named Chairman of Committee to Raise $400,000 in Wisconsin.

H. A. Moehlenpaul, Clinton, has been named chairman of the Wisconsin state committee for Armenian and Syrian relief. An organization is now being formed in Milwaukee, whereby $400,000 will be raised between January 27 and February 2.
The condition of the peoples of Armenia and Syria is a pitiable one, the report received in this country.
The peoples of these countries have been forced to submit to unbelievable atrocities from the Turk and it is support them, by supplying food and clothing to them, that the campaign is being made. Wisconsin's share in the campaign is $600,000 and there is no doubt but that the state will go over the top in this drive as it has done in previous ones.

Other members of the committee in charge of the campaign are: Walter Kasten, Milwaukee; W. F. Mc-Cahey, Racine, and J. A. Dunaway, Madison.

CAN A MAN GET DRUNK ON TWO DRINKS? JOHN JOHNSON BELIEVES NOT

John Johnson could not understand English when a warrant was read to him this morning charging him with drunkenness, but when the judge asked him if he was drunk Saturday, Johnson became indignant and fairly shouted that he had only two drinks, one at nine in the morning and one at five in the afternoon.

He stoutly denied that he had been intoxicated and entered a plea of not guilty to the charge. His hearing was set for four o'clock this afternoon.

Martin Raybor was found slumped in a box car on North Main street and told the judge that he was drunk. He was fined ten dollars and costs or fifteen days.

George Trautman came to Janesville from Chicago, but he could not give any good reason for coming. He admitted that he was drunk and also admitted that he did not have any money.
When asked if he didn't have some money he replied that he was broke and that he did not have even a penny.

He was sentenced to ninety days in the county jail and will be given a job by Sheriff Beley.

FORMER COMPANY M BOY NAMED SERGEANT

Raymond Mason, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willis F. Mason of South Aurora street, who has been attending a non-commissioned officers' school at Camp Green leaf, Ga., has been awarded a sergeant and has been assigned to a base hospital for wounded soldiers at Washington, D. C.

Sergeant Mason is a former member of Company M, having enlisted in this city at the outbreak of the war.
He left with Company M and remained with the company until last summer when he was discharged shortly before the unit sailed for France.

Sergeant Mason was injured in an elevator accident in this city several years ago, causing an injured foot which barred him from overseas duty.
He was not satisfied with the service he had rendered and asked to be sent in a contingent of limited service men.
He left last fall with four other Janesville men all of whom were discharged with the exception of Sergeant Mason. He remained and was chosen to attend a school for non-commissioned officers.

She watched him dwindling down the long platform. He was a mere manikin when he reached his place and waved to her before he vanished through the magic door of the train. She waved to him with her handkerchief, and when he was gone she buried her eyes in it. Her partings with her father had marked epochs in her life. She wondered what destiny would do to her between now and the next one. She felt forlorn, afraid for his life on the train, afraid for her soul in the peril before it, and so sorry for him and for herself that she could not help hoo-hooing a little.

Destiny did not keep her waiting, for while she was strangling her sobs as best she could she heard a voice over her shoulder. It said:

"Aha, get, at last I have you in my power."

"Mr. Duane!" she gasped, as she turned to meet his smile with another. "And where have you been all this long while?"

"A lot you've cared," he growled. "Did you ever telephone me as you promised you would? No! Were you always out when I telephoned? Yes! Did you let me call on you? You did not! When at last I penetrated my thick hide that you were actually giving me a hint that you didn't want me around and that you had thrown me overboard, neck and crop, I grew very proud. I refused to call on you again."

"I'm awfully sorry," she said, and her voice broke.

"Sorry" was a dangerous word for her at that moment, and her sobs were beginning again, when he made a vigorous effort to talk them down.

The crowds in the station were too well preoccupied with their own errands to notice a girl crying, and to the gateman farewell tears were no luxury.

Duane tried the best he could to help her. He was saying: "And now I suppose I've got to miss my train and my golf and all that while I take you home in a taxi. You're far too pretty to be running around loose in a mob like this."

She shook her head. "You mustn't miss your train, Mr. Duane, or your golf. I'm used to going about alone, and I've got to get used to it. I'm going home in the subway. Good-by and thank you."

She put out her hand formally, and he took it. It was like a soft, sun-warmed flower in his palm, and he clung to it. Its warmth seemed to reach through his blood to his heart and to make it ache.

"I must go. You can't put me off again," he said. "I will take you home." He turned to call a redcap standing in solemn patience beside two traveling bags and a bristling golf bag. "Porter, take my things to the parcel room and bring me the check."

"No," said Daphne, hastily. "I mustn't! You mustn't! Really! I mean it! Good-by!"

She walked away so rapidly that he could not follow her without unseemly haste. She heard him call, sharply: "Porter, never mind the parcel room. Come along to the train."

Her success in escaping him was so complete that she rather regretted it. When she reached the apartment she found Lella almost prostrated from the effects of her altruism and from the fact that Bayard was in one of his tantrums.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy Cheeks—Sparkling Eyes—Most Women Can Have

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. You will know them by their olive-green color and the fact that they are made of pure olive oil.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system. If you have a pale face, yellow skin, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results. Thousands of women as well as men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the successful substitute for calomel—now and then just to keep in the pink of condition. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

PETEY DINK—NINE MORE FLARE-UPS, PETEY, AND SHE'LL GET HER TEN.

A special delivery letter had just come from Dattib's shop. It said that Mr. Dattib was arriving from Paris with his winter models, and since he would have to pay a large sum at the customs house it was regrettably necessary to beg Mr. Kip to send by return mail a check for the inclosed bill, which was long past due.

And now the briefly adjourned laws of finance were reassembled. Lella's short reign was over; her extravagance had again found her out and demanded punishment. The gown she had bought, and was asked to pay for, had been worn shabby, danced to shreds in Newport. But the bill was as bright as ever.

Bayard was so fagged with his weeks of discouragement that he was as frangible as a veteran of the gout whose toe has been stepped on. When Daphne walked in he was denouncing Lella in excellent form. He used Daphne as a further club.

"My poor sister sent back the gown she bought! But you—you bought more!"

Daphne realized how much this would endear her to Lella and she took immediate flight. She found the Chivvies in a state of tension. Mr. Chivvis was not usually home before half-past six. Daphne felt an omen in the way they looked at her when they acknowledged her entrance.

She went to her room in a state of foreboding misery. She had not paid her board for several weeks. She had not mentioned the fact to Mrs. Chivvis, nor Mrs. Chivvis to her, though the nonpayment of a board bill is one of the self-evident truths that landladies usually discuss with freedom.

A few minutes later Mrs. Chivvis tapped on the door, her thumb making a sharp click. She brought her sewing with her and sewed as she said: "May I sit down a moment? Thank you." She kept her eyes on the seam while she talked.

"Well, Miss Kip, the war has reached us also at last. My husband lost his position today."

"Yes? Oh, how horrible!" Daphne gasped, with double sincerity.

"The office was closed unexpectedly by an involuntary petition in bankruptcy. His salary was not paid last week nor this, and—well—we don't want to inconvenience you, but—"

"I understand," said Daphne. "I'll give you what I can."

She took her poor little wealth from her handbag. She had paid ten of the fifty to the photographer as a deposit. She gave Mrs. Chivvis twenty-five dollars, and promised her more.

Mrs. Chivvis was very grateful, and went down the hall, smiling a little over her seam.

Clay called that evening. He was exhausted with a day of tramping the town, looking for work. He was too weary to talk and he fell asleep twice during one of Mr. Chivvis' commentaries on the probable effects of the imminent capture of Paris by the irresistible Germans. The French government had already moved to Bordeaux and—But Clay had read it all in a dozen different newspapers, and he passed away.

Daphne was restless. Mr. Chivvis was on her nerves. Clay was not pretty; asleep, sitting with his jaw dropped and his hands hanging down, palms forward, like an ape's. She was enjoying another of the woes of marriage without its privileges.

The Chivvies began to yawn, and Mrs. Chivvis finally bade the startled Clay "Good evening." She had been brought up to believe that it was indecorous for a woman to bid a man "Good-night."

Clay, left alone with Daphne, attempted a drowsy caress, but she felt insulted and she snapped at him:

"If you're only walking in your sleep you'd better walk yourself out of here and go to bed."

His apology was incoherent and she was indignantly curt with him at the door. She went to her room and sat at the window, staring down at the dark swarm of watchers before the bulletin boards.

She had told her brother that she did not have to starve or sin, because she had a father, a brother, a lover to protect her from want. And now her father and her brother and her lover were all in dire predicament, staggering blindly in a fog of debt.

Suppose her father's train ran off the track or into another train. A spread rail, a block signal overlooked, a switch left unlocked, might bring doom upon his train as on so many others. She shivered at the horror of her father's loss. She shivered again at the thought of what it would mean to her.

Suppose the Chivvies turned her out. Why should they feed her for nothing when their own future was endangered?

What could Bayard do for her? or Clay? There was Mr. Duane, of course; but she could not take his money without paying him. And in what coin could she pay him? She trembled, and the breeze turned glacial.

The next morning was another day of the same shoddy pattern. She rose unrefreshed with only her fears renewed. She borrowed the Chivvies' newspaper and, skipping the horrid advertisements of foreign barbarity and American dismay, turned to the last pages. The "Situations Wanted" columns were eloquently numerous and the "Help Wanted—Female" columns were few; still, she made a list of such places as there were. She wrote letters to all sorts of people who gave newspaper letter-box addresses, and she went out to call on all sorts of people who gave their street numbers.

The letters she wrote were not answered at all. She lost her postage as she had lost her car fares. It seemed as if the end of the world, or at least the breakup of its civilization, had arrived without warning and without refuge.

CHAPTER XXV.

Daphne had not told Mrs. Chivvis of her financial plight, nor of her father's, nor her brother's. She had simply let the days of payment go past one by one. She saw a chillier glitter in Mrs. Chivvis' eye and there was a constant restraint upon the conversation for many days.

Mr. Chivvis was at home most of the time now, sitting about in his old clothes to save the others. He and his wife naturally talked of Daphne. Sometimes she overheard their under-tones. Each seemed to urge the other to the attack. Finally, one evening Mrs. Chivvis made so bold as to call on Daphne in her room, and to say, after much improvising:

"I dislike to speak of it, Miss Kip, but—well—you see—the fact is—if you—the grocer is sending round in the morning for his last week's bill, and—if it's not inconvenient—"

Daphne felt sick with shame, but she had to confess, "I can't tell you how sorry I am, but I haven't any."

"Really? That's too bad!" Mrs. Chivvis said. She was hardly sorrier for herself than for Daphne. She tried to brighten them both with hope. "But you expect—no doubt you expect soon to—"

"I've been looking for—for some work to do, but there doesn't seem to be any."

"Oh, I see," said Mrs. Chivvis, confirmed in her suspicions and reduced to silence. Daphne went on, after swallowing several cobblestones:

"But, of course, I've no right to be eating your food and staying on here as a guest. And I suppose I'd better give up my room, so that you can take in somebody who can pay."

Mrs. Chivvis was close, but she was not up to an evasion, and she gasped, "Oh, really?—I hardly think—I shouldn't like—"

Her hard voice crackled like an icicle snapping off the eaves in a spring sun; and before either of them could say more, she was gone.

Daphne was restless. Mr. Chivvis was on her nerves. Clay was not pretty; asleep, sitting with his jaw dropped and his hands hanging down, palms forward, like an ape's. She was enjoying another of the woes of marriage without its privileges.

FORTY YEARS AGO

The Janesville Daily Gazette, Jan. 6, 1879.—Wilbur Carle was out in his cutter this afternoon, much to the joy of himself and many friends. He has got along with his broken leg as well as could be expected, but still has his crutches within reach.

The new uniform in which Marshal Keating appeared today appears to be very neat, being of dark blue with white metal buttons. The new clothes were presented to the marshal by several citizens, who took this way of indicating their appreciation of the valuable services of that official. Keating deserves much tribute, as he is a most faithful and efficient officer and shrewd detective.

The other evening the First Congregational church took advantage of the invitation of their pastor, Rev. Sawin, to have a social gathering at his house, to see upon him and his family in full force and gave them a most abundant pounding. But the pastor confessed that he was not so plausibly damaged, and there was really no cause of action against the church or society. The marks left were mostly on the table and they consisted of many brown covered packages, consisting of sugar, coffee, tea, raisins, starch, rice, flour, buckwheat, candy and other things bought by the pound and especially necessary for one keeping house. Even the baby was remembered with a beautiful silver mug. The evening was spent in happy social intercourse and when the hour for departure came all felt closer and happier bonds than before.

Myron Coon, an employee of the Northwestern road, slipped in front of Hogsboom & Atwood's coal yard and broke his ankle.

John Morrissey has signed with the Manchester for the season of 1879. He will probably be put on third base.

Senator Richardson and Assemblyman Lovejoy went to Madison today to enter upon the legislative work.

Among the sick are Mrs. Ella Robar, Mrs. E. L. Hoyt, Mrs. O. W. Sewles, Mrs. Lloyd McElwain, Mrs. William Westphal family, E. M. Jewell family, the children of A. Droese, Mrs. William Miller and baby and Mrs. J. W. Tyler and baby.

Where she divided her time.

All public gathering places were ordered closed Friday morning by the board of health. Saturday the order was lifted until midnight Saturday night for the benefit of the moving picture theater, which did not want to close until Sunday. No church was held Sunday.

CHANDLER'S GOBS WIN FROM BADGERS, 14-12

Madison, Jan. 6.—In one of the most spectacular games ever played at Wisconsin Gymnasium, Great Lakes basketball quintet won from the Badgers, Saturday night by a score of 14 to 12. Wisconsin led up to the last few minutes of play when two lucky field goals put the boys two points in the lead. It was a hot contest from start to finish. The Badgers led at half time by a 6 to 3 count.

Captain Bill Chandler of the gobs was held scoreless by Penning, who in turn dropped in four field goals during the struggle. Big "Bill" won the game for his team however, by caging six free throws. "Shorty" Bauer ran rings around the sailors throughout the game. McIntosh also showed up well.

The scores:
Wisconsin..... Great Lakes
Bauer..... Johnson
McIntosh..... Chandler
Gureno, Fanning..... Wassen Barlow.....
Pease.....
Johnson 2; Wassen 2; Gureno.
Free throws—Chandler 6. Referee—Sahmmer, Chicago.

Sport Snap Shots

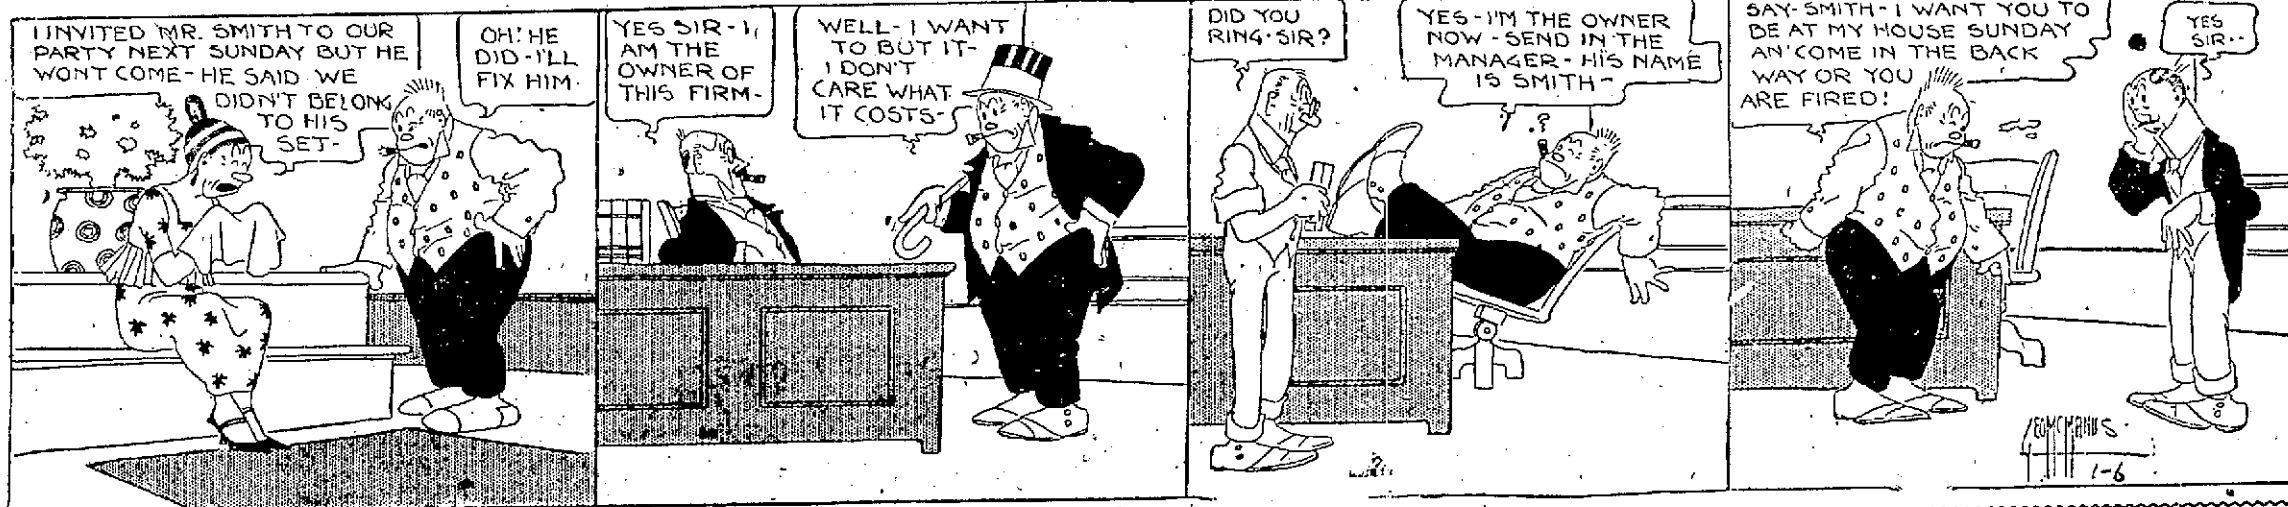

There is every indication now that college athletics will be back next year on what will approximate a normal pre-war basis. This means that the annual football games of Harvard, Yale, Princeton, and other institutions will be played again next autumn. There will also be a resumption of baseball and the boxing fixtures, with the possible exception of the Fougasse regatta, and minor sports will also flourish.

The activity in college athletics, after a period of nearly two years, is assured by the announcements of the various colleges and universities that sports will be resumed at once. This has been made possible by the demobilization of the S. A. C. C. and the return of many athletes to private life. While not all the former stars will be able to return to their schools in time for the spring and summer sports, they will probably all have returned by next fall. In the meantime coaches find a wealth of material developed while the schools were under military supervision.

Efforts are already being made to organize basketball and hockey teams for the present winter. Yale, Harvard, and Princeton are preparing to form a hockey league again. The plans for it are only being held up by the fact that the rink at New Haven, where Yale held its home games, has been turned to other uses. A new rink will likely be arranged for in time to make up a schedule.

Harvard is probably as well prepared as any of the big eastern colleges to resume sports on a large scale. Only on the question of football is the Crimson in doubt. It is again known whether Major Percy Houghton will return to coach the gridiron squad. He is now in France in the Chemical Warfare branch of the service, and it is not known when he will be able to return to Harvard. In the meantime Bob Fisher, Houghton's chief assistant; Leo Leary, and Peggy Brown are on hand to handle

BRINGING UP FATHER

CHICAGO WHIPS CAMP GRANT IN FAST GAME

Chicago, Jan. 6.—Strengthened by the addition of Gorgas and Birkhoff, Chicago university basketball quintet scored its first big victory at Bartlett gymnasium Saturday night by defeating the strong Camp Grant five by a score of 31 to 19. It was a hot but clearly contested game in which the Maroons demonstrated their superiority. They led at half time 21 to 11.

The scores:
Maroons (31)..... B F P T Hitchcock, rf..... 2 0 2 0 Birkhoff, lf..... 3 0 1 0 Gorgas, c..... 4 1 0 0
Palmer, rf..... 0 1 0 0 Hinkie, lf..... 3 2 0 0 Endriz, cf..... 0 0 0 0
Camp Grant (19)..... B F P T Delmore, rf..... 1 0 0 0 Lulas, lf..... 2 0 0 0 Homsath, c..... 2 0 1 0 Roth, rf..... 0 0 1 0 Donaghey, lf..... 1 0 0 0 Referee—Lang, Illinois.

Most important on Princeton's program is the decision to establish football on its former scale. Bill Roper, who coached the championship Tiger eleven in 1911, will probably be engaged again. In addition there will be "Speedy" Rush, Ross McClave, Parke Davis, and "Snake" Ames to assist.

Pennsylvania will make its first move to get back to a pre-war basis by turning track and field material. Coach Lieutenant Lawson Robertson is expected back soon to take charge of the athletics. He has been stationed at Garden City, but a request has been made that he be discharged. He will begin at once to sift material in order that Penn may be well represented in the championships next year.

Farm Accounts Simplified

VIA

The Daily Calendar Route

The easiest, simplest, accounting idea yet devised is a Calendar which gives you an opportunity to enter on the date of the month you buy or sell or pay out or receive any money, directly on the calendar pad, which totaled at the end of the month gives an exact record of all transactions. Each month is so arranged as to preserve the record throughout the year.

Inasmuch as the government requires an income report, each year it is necessary to keep a complete record of all transactions so that you may be able to intelligently answer the questions on the blank form which the government supplies you with. This calendar was designed for farm use especially and is so unique and complete and so easily handled that you wonder it had not been thought of long before.

The Farm Income Calendar will save more time and trouble than you ever dreamed of, unless you remember the perplexities of making your report last time without the aid of an income record.

The Farm Income Calendar leaves nothing to guess-work. No confusion about it, the entries can be made by anyone and the totaling at the end of the month is easy as can be.

One of these handy calendars, with one coupon clipped here-with, and mailed to you for 10c to cover cost.

Start the year's record at once and be safe.
